Dear Danny,

Welcome to China next week! Now I want to tell you about Chinese meals(膳食).

We Chinese people have three meals every day. We have breakfast at about 7:00. We have eggs, bread, noodles, milk, or other food for breakfast. Lunch is a big meal of a day in China. We always have lunch at about 12:00. Students have lunch at school on school days. Workers have lunch at their companies(公司). We have rice, vegetables, meat, soup, or other food for lunch. We always have dinner at home at about 6:00 p. m.

We have rice, vegetables, fish and meat. The dinner is usually big, too.

In a word, I think Chinese food is very yummy. Please remember to have some Chinese food when you come to China. I hope you will like it.

Yours,
Peter

Tom lived in the country(农村) and he liked playing in a very small river near his house. But then his family moved into a big city.

On the first morning he asks his mother, "Is there a river here?" His mother says, "No, there isn't, but there is a nice park near here, and there's a pool in it. We are going there this afternoon."

After lunch, Tom and his mother take a walk to the park. Tom wants to walk near the pool, but there is a sign in front of it. His mother reads it to him: "NO SWIMMING—'This pool is dangerous. 367 people have fallen into(已经掉进去) it.'" Tom looks into the pool carefully. Then he says, "I can't see them."
